The Nez Perces Indians

LAPWAI AGENCY

Of all the Indians on this Coast, these are the best specimens of the human species.—The labors of the early Missionaries are plainly seen in their present customs. By the treaty of 18.. they have been placed on a tract of country at the Western slope of the Bitter Root mountains and containing about 10 000 square miles. The entire surface of this vast country, with only slight exceptions, is perhaps the best grazing country in America. The soil is deep and strong, and would grow excellent wheat. It is covered with a luxuriant growth of bunch grass which is very nutritious and when cured makes excellent hay. The greater part of the reservation is without timber of any kind. Not even a shrub grows on these vast plains to relieve the wearied eye of the traveler or break away the intense heat of the sun.

In winter the cold is very severe, as the vast numbers of dead animals in the spring will show. In traveling over these vast mountainous praries, for many miles the land is putrid with the carcasses of horses and cattle, the silent witnesses of the severity of the past winter. In an ordinary season the grass grows so luxuriantly that the deepest snows do not "shorten the rations" of the vast hords of animals that live on the uncultivated fields.

The soil is formed from the decomposed lava which literally covers the country, and putrescent organic matter. The whole region given to the Nez Perces Indians, and many thousands of square miles beside is one vast sea bottom as is demonstrated by the marine fossils found at the White Bluffs, where the upper new red sand stone comes to the light.

The Lapwai Agency now in the hands of Mr Hutchins is near the center of the reservation, and at the confluence of the Lapwai and Clearwater rivers and about 12 miles from the junction of the latter with Snake river. Though the Agent and his attachees, are far remote from the center of civilization, yet they "speak the language and their voices sound human." A weary traveler, hot, dusty and desolate, curbed his horse at the door of the office and was soon introduced to a table smoking with green corn, peas, potatoes, et cetera, while an Indian boy took charge of the borrowed horse. Dinner over we found a welcome retreat in the shade of some small alder bushes growing near the river. Not being "very heavy on the pipe stem," while others smoked and spun their yarns, wise and other wise, I fell asleep on the top of a small boulder.

I awoke from sleep, and also to the reality that I was on the spot where many years ago a pilgrim stood and taught the poor Indian to love his God, the effects of which are still marked in the habits of these "Sons of the Soil."

I was glad to learn that Mr Hutchins was following an economical and safe plan in the affairs of his office. Some Government officers may swindle the Government or contravene the destination of Government funds, but to learn the facts in connection with the Lapwai Agency is to learn that the Agent is a good man for the post.

Here we made the acquaintance of the old chief Lawyer, who is the head over all the nation. He is a great man and a firm friend to the whites. His word is law in general. A few bands which do not receive their annuities are a little off in their allegiance, but not more so than any other Secessionist.

Mr Hutchins will have a fine flouring mill completed in time for the fall harvest, where the nation can have the flour from wheat of their own culture.

C. H. HALL

VOLUNTEER RELIEF FUND.—Boxes were put up at the places of voting in San Francisco. The whole amount collected was $3,128,60 in aid of the Fund.

Meeting at Forest Grove

Forest Grove, Sept 2 1862.

A meeting was called at Forest Grove, for the purpose of ... the urgent appeal of the U. S. Sanitary Commission for the relief of the suffering ... wounded soldiers of the people's army ... East and West.

Prof. Lyman was called to the chair and Parris Smith was chosen Secretary. After some discussion by the Speaker Prof. Marsh, Dr. Bewley and others, it was moved and carried that a Committee of two be appointed by the chair to draft resolutions.

The chair appointed Prof. Marsh and Dr. Bewley.

The Committee reported the following resolution, which was adopted:

Holding our Union ... a priceless legacy left us by our fathers, and worth the sacrifice of our life itself, we sympathize with its brave defenders in the field in their sufferings and dangers, and when we consider the nature of the conflict and the voluntary offering of their lives by our soldiery in defense of our country, our hearts go out in earnest wishes and prayers for them. We therefore hail as a privilege the opportunity offered to aid through the Sanitary Commission those who have suffered and are suffering in the field and in the camp.

Papers were passed among the audience and near ninety dollars were raised.

A Committee of Samuel Hughes, Stephen Knox and D. Smith was appointed to obtain further aid.

D. SMITH, Sec'y.

Inaugural of Governor Gibbs

The inauguration of A. C. Gibbs Governor of Oregon at Salem on Wednesday last was a very [illegible] affair affording an agreeable occasion for general rejoicing by the members of the Legislative Assembly and all loyal citizens who witnessed it.

The proceedings took place in the M. E. Church at 2 o'clock P. M., and was attended by a large number of ladies and gentlemen of the city and State as spectators. The Senate and House of Representatives after having met in the Hall of the House of Representatives and canvassed the votes of the several counties of the State and declared the result as required by the Constitution, resolved to meet in the M. E. Church in a body at 2 o'clock P. M. to witness the administration of the oath of office and hear the Inaugural Address. At the time appointed the members of the Senate and House of Representatives, their several officers and reporters, members of the "Press" and citizens generally, formed in line preceded by the Salem Brass Band, and marched to the church. Upon entering same, the Band played the National Air—"Hail Columbia," and a very appropriate prayer was offered by Rev. Father [illegible]. Mr. Gibbs was then introduced to the audience by Gen. Palmer, Speaker of the House, as the Governor elect of the State of Oregon. His introduction was received amid enthusiastic demonstrations by the whole audience, whereupon the solemn and important oath of office of Governor of the State of Oregon was impressively administered to Mr. Gibbs by Chief Justice Boise. After the taking of the oath, Gov. Gibbs proceeded to deliver his Inaugural Address, which will appear in another column.

We regard the Address as a very neat, appropriate and highly patriotic document, worthy of the high official position from which it emanates, and creditable to the author and the whole people of the State. We doubt not it will be read with interest and satisfaction by every loyal person on the coast, and be well received by the authorities of the Government at Washington, and all patriots throughout the Atlantic.

Whitaker's Message

As previously announced, "the last will and testament" of the "knight of the catgut" was received and read by the clerks of the Senate and House of Representatives on Wednesday morning last at Salem, and we are informed that the document abounds with the characteristic qualities of the man. He first starts out by informing the Legislature that the country has been afflicted with a terrible scourge "from big rains and vast waters, but thanks his God that the people, cattle and hogs of the country have not all been drowned as they would have undoubtedly been." He further makes the startling announcement that the country made a fortunate escape "for if it had rained two weeks more the water would have spread out from mountain to mountain, dampening the whole face of the earth," and causing an immense demand for gum boots, which could not have been procured in time to save the country from becoming exceedingly moist. We may perhaps have added a little to this as we have not yet seen the document, but have good authority for saying that the above is about the substance of his "preface." He then gives a few statistical facts taken from the State Treasurer's report, and congratulates himself that he did not spend all the State money for fiddle strings, rosum and whisky. The balance of the message was devoted to the condition of the country, and among all productions of a treasonable character previously enunciated by the secession sympathizers of this State, we are told that this caps the climax. He boldly and unblushingly condemns the war and denounces the Administration, and those engaged in it on the part of the Union, and proclaims himself a friend, a sympathizer and a champion of the South and Southern rights, thus unmistakably fixing upon himself the seal and signature of a traitor to his country and an enemy to the land which gave him birth and fed and protected him in his infancy and weakness. There is no question as to his rebellious sympathy with the South or what he would do had he the power. But as the Legislature has ordered the printing of this delectable sugar coated pill of Jeff Davis' Confederacy, as appropriately remarked by a gentleman of the House, we shall withhold further notice until we see it in print.

STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The regular biennial meeting of the Oregon State Agricultural Society for the election of officers, will take place at Salem on Monday, the 17th instant. It is hoped that there will be a full attendance of members. We understand that Major Francis is not a candidate for re-election.

COLD.—A heavy frost and a slight appearance of ice was visible upon the ground at Salem on Wednesday morning last.

Gov Gibbs Inaugural Address,

Delivered [illegible]

[illegible] At an early day [illegible] opportunity [illegible] ental legislation.

As a co-ordinate branch of the government it will afford me pleasure [illegible] to co-operate with you in the [illegible] of our important duties.

Upon a proper education of the people [illegible] among the masses. The [illegible] of popular education has [illegible] attention [illegible] duty, as [illegible] provements will [illegible]. The common schools, the academies and colleges are [illegible] and should be encouraged. We may congratulate ourselves that Congress has provided the means for making farming more honorable and useful by donations of land to each State for the establishment of Agricultural Colleges. The friends of [illegible] have long urged the importance of such institutions while they have been opposed by those who prefer to do the thinking and let others perform the labor. Now is the time to accept this proposition of the Government and take the initiating steps in organizing a system of instruction which I trust may be of incalculable benefit to the rising generation of Oregon. But the experiment [illegible] and it is to be hoped the result will prove all that has been desired by its most ardent friends.

All [illegible] congratulate [illegible] you the people of Oregon, [illegible] peace and prosperity surround us.

The prospect for Oregon was [illegible] promising, save the shadows from the fires of secession which [illegible] blazing around our childhood homes.

Though we have had a winter of unprecedented severity and devastating floods, [illegible] traitorous hand has been raised to tear down our nation's flag and [illegible] our institutions.

A wicked rebellion is raging east of the Rocky Mountains with all its devastating fury. The border States are being desolated.—The cries of the sick and wounded and the moans of the mother [illegible] may be heard in every town. These evils [illegible] have been spared us. While this is so it may be well for us to pause and consider how near our feet have approached the awful gulf of secession which [illegible] partially concealed but a few paces before [illegible]

A Senator in whose hand [illegible] in the American Senate on the 2d of March 1861 and said "Whether the course that the seceding States have [illegible] take be right or not is a question which we must leave to posterity and the verdict of immortal history. And, speaking of the Confederate States he said, "I look upon that government as one of the most [illegible] experiments on the face of the earth [illegible] history of mankind, embodying the purest patriotism, the highest order of statesmanship and the greatest amount of talent and administrative capacity that can be found among the same number of people in any [illegible] on the face of the globe."

But a short time ago the traitor Albert Sidney Johnson was commander of the entire military of the Pacific coast. [illegible] him came an unprecedented [illegible] of arms [illegible] general peace with all our Indians. Some of the federal officers on the coast are known to have been disloyal.

The Indian agent in Oregon after the plot was discovered and broken up hastily left the State to join the rebel army in which he now holds a commission. Some of the Indians left the reservation and went to their old homes, stating that those who had charge of them had told them that there was no government now.

The re-enactment of the scenes of Kentucky and Tennessee were prevented on this coast by the attention of Union men and vigilance of the Administration. All honor to both!

The all absorbing question of the day is how to put down the rebellion and pay the expenses of the war. A great majority of the people of Oregon are loyal men, willing to pay their taxes—and in the circulation of United States Treasury notes without a murmur and [illegible] are prompted by the spirit of our fathers when they mutually pledged to each other their lives, their fortunes and sacred honor to establish this government.

There is but one line between Union and disunion. Those who are not for us are against us. It has been said often and truthfully that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." Mark its pregnant truths at this time and watch those who carp at every real or imaginary error of the Administration, and are complaining of the tax bill because a small portion of their fortunes are required to preserve civil and religious liberty in America.

Honorable gentlemen, nearly all of you like myself, were elected under a pledge to support the officers of the Government in all constitutional means to put down the present wicked rebellion.

The proposition that the Government has no power to weaken its enemies in open arms against it by taking their property that their lives may be taken, but not their property, is to my mind too absurd for discussion. A secessionist should have no property in negroes or anything else. Property is power, and should we leave it in rebel hands to be wielded against us while the bones of our kinsmen are bleaching on the fields of a hundred battles? and while hundreds of thousands of our fellow citizens are liable to share the same fate.

I consider it my highest duty as well as pleasure to do all I can to exert all the influence of my present position at home and abroad, in putting down secession and preserving the best Government in the world. And by repentance, humiliation and reformation, we should strive to remove all further cause for visitation of God's judgment upon our State and Nation, ever feeling that He that ruleth the Heavens holds in His hands the destinies of Nations.

ADDISON C. GIBBS.

PACK TRAIN ROBBED.—A pack train on the way to Auburn and whilst camped at Three Mile, had six of their best animals driven off. The theft was immediately discovered and the thieves tracked to the foot of Mount Hood and all the animals recovered. The thieves when overtaken showed fight and one of the men was killed. None of the party pursuing were injured. The train to which the animals belonged was owned by Capt. Hinsdale. There is quite a gang of these horse thieves and it would be well if [illegible] of them were made to dangle at a [illegible] [illegible]

FINE BRIDGE.—The citizens of Salem are constructing what will doubtless be the finest bridge in the State, across one of the tributaries of Mill Creek on Main street running South of the city.

LEGISLATIVE PROCEEDINGS

Senate

September 10, 1862.

Senate met at the usual hour, President Bell in the Chair. Members all present except Mr. Kelly.

[illegible] State Treasurer was received [illegible] laid on the table and 500 copies ordered printed.

Message from Gov. Whiteaker was received [illegible] 1,000 copies ordered printed for the use of the Senate.

The Senate then repaired to the Hall of the House [illegible] to invitation [illegible] with [illegible] the opening and canvassing of the votes at the late election for Governor.

Upon returning to their hall, adjourned till half past [illegible] o'clock P. M.

[illegible] Mr. Mitchell [illegible] the Senate held on Monday [illegible] members subscribed to the oath [illegible] Senators.

Upon motion the Senate then adjourned till [illegible] A. M.

After adjournment [illegible] at [illegible] M. E. Church [illegible] the inauguration of Governor Gibbs.

House

September 10, 1862.

Mr. [illegible] presented a petition from the people of Oregon City asking changes in the charter of the city. Referred.

Mr. Hanna of Jackson, offered a memorial praying Congress to make appropriation for [illegible] Referred to Committee—Hanna, Mallory and Cummins.

Mr. [illegible] of Marion [illegible] resolution giving [illegible] the House. Adopted.

Mr. Hanna of Jackson, asked leave to introduce a bill to regulate the width of [illegible] proving the streets of Jacksonville, [illegible] the jurisdiction of road supervisors to the corporate limits of the city. Referred.

Mr. Humason of Wasco moved [illegible] resolution requiring that [illegible] copies of rules and joint rules be printed for the benefit of the House.

Mr. Simpson opposed this [illegible] expense. Said [illegible] the rules [illegible] in the journals, and it was difficult to find them in the journals, members may mark the place. He believed that the present is [illegible] time to begin to [illegible] money. That we have already been sufficiently extravagant in this printing business.

Message from the Governor read by the clerk.

Mr. Mallory of Jackson moved that a thousand copies be printed.

Mr. Stevenson of Coos and Curry [illegible] fifty.

Mr. [illegible] two thousand. None [illegible]

Mr. Humason moved that [illegible] committee to ascertain [illegible]

Many motions were made in regard to the disposition of this document.

Mr. Stevenson of Coos and Curry opposed entirely the printing of this message. He thought here was a good point to economise. The house had refused us copies of the rules and to be consistent we should not print this delectable sugar coated pill for Jeff. Davis.

Went into joint convention at [illegible] and counted the vote for governor.

Mr. Stevenson of Coos and Curry moved that the convention adjourn to the Methodist church to witness the inauguration of the Governor and hear his address. Adjourned.

CALIFORNIA ELECTION.—Returns sufficient to determine the result of the election in that State have been received. The Union Administration ticket has succeeded very [illegible] in all the different counties. The [illegible] of the Legislature will be overwhelmingly Union Administration. Swett for State Superintendent of Public Instruction is elected by a heavy majority. The people have declared in language not to be misunderstood their determination to sustain the Union, the Administration and the war. They have rebuked the secessionists and those who sympathized and acted with them in a manner not to be soon forgotten.—Secessionists and rebel sympathizers are notified by the result that their support is political death to any man or any party which accepts it.

The publication of the fact that California has given a very large majority for the Union Administration ticket on the Atlantic side will gladden the hearts of Union men and strengthen the confidence of the President in the loyalty of the people on the Pacific. Oregon led off with a heavy Union majority and California has followed in her footsteps. She may now be classed with the most loyal States of the Union. Sac. Un.

CITY.

THE MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

THE DAILY OREGONIAN may be had at the Franklin Book Store, and at Charles Barrett's, Front street.

PETITION IN CIRCULATION.—We noticed in circulation yesterday, a numerously signed petition, to the Legislative Assembly, praying that body to enforce the clause in the State Constitution relative to the exclusion of colored people from Oregon, also to pass a law compelling Chinamen to pay a stipulated tax into the State Treasury.

PROPOSED BENEFIT.—We understand that Professor Sedlak, assisted by several of his pupils and other amateurs in the city, will shortly give a concert at the Willamette Theatre, in aid of the Sanitary Commission.

IMMIGRANTS.—The John last night brought quite an addition to our population in the shape of several families of immigrants, among whom we noticed a few rosy-cheeked girls, fitting mates for some of the bachelors of Oregon.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the matter of Mrs. Marks and daughter, the daughter was discharged and Mrs. Marks fined $10 and costs.

Wm. Honlon, d. d., fined $10 and costs; Frank Mitchell, an other d. d., was discharged.

THEATRICAL.—Denison's Opera House was well visited last evening to witness the performance. If the Manager conducts his establishment in the future in as creditable a manner as he has for the past two weeks, we have no doubt he will always receive a fair patronage from our amusement-loving citizens. At the Willamette there was no performance last night. The Metropolitan Minstrels have gone to Vancouver, where they will perform to-night, and on to-morrow they will return in this city, when Frank Hussey will take a benefit.

PERSONAL.—Dr. A. G. Henry, Surveyor-General of Washington Territory, called on us last evening. He comes over on official business with B. J. Pengra, Surveyor General of Oregon.

The amendments to the Constitution of California, were adopted at the election providing for biennial sessions of the Legislature; a four years term for the Governor; makes elective the office of Secretary of State; abolishes the Court of Sessions; makes a separate election for Judges; and five instead of three Justices of the Supreme Court, who are to hold office 10 years.

A letter from a friend at Vancouver says, gold is said to be found in our neighbor [illegible] It is the general impression that they will turn out to be $4 and $5 diggings.

We should so live and labor that what came to us as seed may go to the next generation as blossom, and what came to us as blossom may go to them as fruit.

SUBSCRIPTIONS IN AID OF SANITARY COMMISSION.—Amount previously acknowledged [illegible].00. [illegible] $5; Steamer Leviathan, 10; [illegible], 10; J. F. Baker, 5; H. Jackson, [illegible]; D. Ricord [illegible] is one example, a shining light among the philosophers of his age in Europe, and Dr. Czapkay has followed him in this country, as a proof of which, the [illegible] College of Medicine complimented him with a [illegible] the honorary ad eundem degree. Setting this [illegible] of operation, although qualified as a graduate of the University of Pesth, and late Chief Surgeon of the Hungarian Revolutionary army, for more extended labors, Dr. Czapkay has bent his earnest attention to the cure of [illegible] private diseases, in which he has become so great [illegible], that he is now regarded as the PARAGON in this [illegible] of his profession throughout the United States and [illegible] portrait and biography are published as matter of interest [illegible] readers in the most exclusive journals. The [illegible] offices are at his Medical and Surgical Institute on [illegible] street, corner of Leidesdorff, nearly opposite the [illegible] of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, San Francisco. ### Born to Love Pigs and Chickens.

It is allotted to the destiny of every country girl to have one fashionable female friend in the city—somebody to correspond with, somebody to quote, somebody to write her the particulars of the last elopement, somebody to send her patterns of collars, and the rise and fall of tournures, and such other things as are not entered into by the monthly magazines. How these apparently unlikely acquaintances are formed, is as much a mystery as the eternal youth of post boys, and the eternal duration of donkeys. Far be it from me to pry irreverently into those pokerish corners of the machinery of the world. I go no further than the fact, that Miss Julia Hampson was an acquaintance of Miss Pifflit's.

Everybody knows "Hampson & Co."

Miss Hampson was a good deal what the Fates had tried to make her. If she had not been admirably well dressed, it would have been by violent opposition to the united zeal and talent of both dressmakers and milliners. These important vicegerents of the Hand that reserves to itself the dressing of the butterfly and lily, make distinctions in the exercise of their vocations. Wo be to an unlovable woman, if she be not endowed with taste supreme. She may buy all the stuffs of France, and all the colors of the rainbow, but she will never get, from those keen judges of fitness, the loving hint, the admiring and selective persuasion, with which they delight to influence the embellishment of sweetness and loveliness. They who talk of "anything looking well on a pretty woman," have not reflected on the Lesser Providence of dressmakers and milliners. Woman is never mercenary but in monstrous exceptions, and no tradeswoman of the fashions will sell taste or counsel; and, in the superior style of all charming women, you see, not the influence of manners upon dress, but the affectionate tribute of these dispensers of elegance to the qualities they admire. Let him who doubts, go shopping with his dressy old aunt to day, and to-morrow with his dear little cousin.

Miss Hampson, to whom the supplies of elegance came as naturally as bread and butter, and occasioned as little speculation as to whence or how, was as unconsciously elegant, of course, as a well dressed lily. She was abstractly a very beautiful girl, though in a very delicate and unconspicuous style, and by dint of absolute fitness in dressing, the merit of her beauty, by common observers at least, would be half given to her fashionable air and unexceptionable toilet. The damsel and her choice array, indeed, seemed the harmonious work of the same maker. How much was Nature's gift, and how much was bought on Broadway, was probably never duly understood by even her most discriminate admirer.

But we have kept Miss Hampson too long upon the stairs.

The two young ladies met with a kiss, in which (to the surprise of those who had previously observed Miss Pifflit) there was no smack of the latest fashion.

"My dear Julia!"

"My dear Margerine!" (This was a romantic variation of Meg's, which she had forced upon her intimate friends at the point of the bayonet.)

Eph. twitched, remindingly, the jupon of his cousin, and she introduced him with the formula which she had found in one of Miss Austin's novels.

"Oh, but there was a mock respectfulness in that deep courtesy," thought Eph. (and so there was—for Miss Hampson took an irresistible cue from the inflated ceremoniousness of the introduction.)

Eph. made a bow as cold and stiff as a frozen horse-blanket. And if he could have commanded the blood in his face, it would have been as dignified and resentful as the eloquence of Red Jacket—but that rustic blush, up to his hair, was like a mask dropped over his features.

"A bashful country boy," as she looked compassionately upon his red hot forehead, and forthwith dismissed him entirely from her thoughts.

With a consciousness that he had better leave the room, and walk off his mortification under an umbrella, Eph. took his seat, and silently listened to the conversation of the young ladies. Miss Hampson had come to pass the morning with her friend, and she took off her bonnet, and showered down upon her dazzling neck a profusion of the most adorable brown ringlets. Spite of his angry humiliation, the young farmer felt a thrill run through his veins as the heavy curls fell indolently about her shoulders. He had never looked upon a woman with ambition before. He hated her—oh, yes! for she had given him a look that could never be forgiven—but for somebody, she must be the angel of the world. Eph would have given all his sheep and horses, cows, crops, and hay-stacks, to have seen the man she would fancy to be her equal. He could not give even a guess at the height of that conscious superiority from which she individually looked down upon him; but it would have satisfied a thirst which almost made him scream, to measure himself by a man with whom she could be familiar? Where was his inferiority? What was it? Why had he been blind to it till now? Was there no surgeon's knife, no caustic, that could carve out, or cut away, burn or scarify, the vulgarities she looked upon so contemptuously? But the devil take her superciliousness, nevertheless.

It was a bitter morning to Eph. Bracely, but still it went like a dream. The hotel parlor was no longer a stupid place. His cousin Meg had gained a consequence in his eyes, for she was the object of caress from this superior creature—she was the link which kept her within his observation. He was too full of other feelings just now to do more than to acknowledge the superiority of this girl to his cousin. He felt it in his after thoughts, and his destiny then, for the first time, seemed crossed and inadequate to his wishes.

* * * * * * * *

(We hereby draw upon your imagination for six months, courteous reader. Please allow the "teller" to show you into the middle of the following July.)

Bracely farm, ten o'clock of a glorious summer morning—Miss Pifflit extended on a sofa in despair. But let us go back a little.

A week before, a letter had been received from Miss Hampson, who to the delight and surprise of her friend Margerine, had taken the whim to pass a month with her. She was at Rockaway, and was sick and tired of waltzing and the sea. Had not Farmer Bracely a spare corner for a poor girl?

But Miss Pifflit's "second sober thought" was utter consternation. How to lodge fitly the elegant Julia Hampson? No French bed in the house, no boudoir, no ottomans, no pastilles, no baths, no Psyche to dress by! What vulgar wretches they would seem to her! What unspeakable horror she would feel at the dreadful inelegance of the farm! Meg was pale with terror and dismay as she went into the details of anticipation.

Something must be done, however. A sleepless night of reflection and contrivance sufficed to give some shape to the capabilities of the case, and by daylight next morning, the whole house was in commotion—Meg had, fortunately, a large bump of constructiveness, very much enlarged by her habitual dilemmas of toilette. A boudoir must be constructed. Farmer Bracely slept in the dried apple room, on the lower floor, and he was no no sooner out of bed, than his bed and baggage were tumbled up stairs, his gun and Sunday whip were taken down from their nails, the floor scoured, and the ceiling white washed. Eph was, by this time, returned from the village with all the chintz that could be bought, and a paper of tacks, and some new straw carpeting, and, by ten o'clock that night, the four walls of the apartment were covered with the gayly flowered material, the carpet was nailed down, and old Farmer Bracely thought it a mighty nice, cool looking place. Eph was a bit of a carpenter, and he soon knocked together some boxes, which, when covered with chintz and stuffed with wool, looked very much like ottomans, and with a handsome cloth on the round table, geraniums in the windows, and a chintz curtain to subdue the light, it was not far from being a very charming boudoir, and Meg began to breathe freely.
